Hawaii Judge Puts Man Behind Bars Over 'Thank You, Jesus'

HONOLULU, July 14, 2006 -- A state judge on Friday refused to apologize to a man he put behind bars for shouting "Thank you, Jesus" in his courtroom.

Junior Stowers awaited the verdict in his domestic abuse trial last week. A lot was at stake for Stowers. As an immigrant, if he was convicted he could be deported and could lose his position as a youth volunteer at his church.

The judge was Patrick Border. Gov. Linda Lingle appointed him two years ago.

Just before the verdict was read, the judge whispered a warning to the attorneys.

Dialogue from the trial:

"No displays of emotion one way or another by anyone in the case. You understand?" Border said in court.

Defense attorney Carmel Kwok said she didn't have time to warn her client. The verdict came four seconds after the judge's warning.

Dialogue from the trial:

"We, the jury, in the above entitled case find the defendant not guilty," the jury foreman said.

"Thank you, Jesus!" Stowers exclaimed.

"You be quiet. OK, we will be in conference after that," Border said.

"He wanted to apologize, and the judge cut him off and didn't let him apologize," Kwok told KITV on Friday.

Dialogue from the trial:

"May I approach the bench, your honor?" Stowers said.

"No, you may not," Border said.

"Your honor, he just wants to apologize," Kwok said.

"Well, I think I had earlier alerted counsel, and I had in previous cases," Border said. "This kind of behavior, outbursts are not permitted."

The supervising public defender, Ronnette Kawakami, said she was shocked to see the judge order Stowers locked up.

"He was placed in handcuffs in front of his family, in front of his family and taken down to the cellblock for nothing other than saying, 'Thank you, Jesus' in a loud voice," Kawakami said.

Six hours later, Border defended his action.

"It was observed within my presence. It was behavior that was more characteristic, more applicable for the swap meet or a major contest," Border said.

Stowers remained in custody for four to five hours.

A week later, Border dropped the contempt charge, agreeing that Kwok didn't have a chance to warn her client before the verdict. On Friday, Border refused to make any other comment or offer an apology.

Stowers told his lawyer he is not looking for an apology. He said he just wants to get on with his life.

As for Border, except for the reappointment process that comes around only every 10 years, there is really no mechanism in Hawaii for judging the behavior of judges, KITV reported.

Marijuana Legal in Alaska, again

July 11, 2006--A judge struck down part of the new Alaska law that had re-criminalized marijuana in the state, ruling that the new law conflicts with past state Supreme Court decisions that protect adults who have small amounts of marijuana in their homes.

Until last month when the new Alaska law took effect -- possession of up to four ounces of marijuana in the home had been legal in Alaska. Unfortunately, the new law attempted to make it a crime to possess any amount of marijuana in the privacy of the home, directly contradicting a September 2004 Alaska Supreme Court decision allowing adults aged 21 and older to use and possess up to four ounces of marijuana in the privacy of their homes. The MPP grants program funded this litigation.

You can read about the ruling in <http://www.mpp.org/AK/news/12361.mpp> this Associated Press article -- means that police will not be able to search someone's home for marijuana unless they have probable cause to believe that the home contains more than one ounce of marijuana. (The court limited its decision yesterday to amounts under one ounce -- not four ounces -- saying that the Alaska Civil Liberties Union, which brought the case, argued that the issue at hand was the state legislature's power to regulate "small amounts" of marijuana.)

The bad law enacted last month was the result of an aggressive lobbying campaign by Alaska Gov. Frank Murkowski (R), who went on a personal crusade to re-criminalize marijuana in the state. Political observers originally expected Murkowski's bill to pass within weeks of its introduction in early 2005, but many months of lobbying and grassroots organizing by MPP, the Alaska Civil Liberties Union, and Alaskans for Marijuana Regulation and Control succeeded in blocking the bill for one-and-a-half years. However, the governor and state attorney general's intense lobbying campaign, which included personal phone calls to waffling legislators, ultimately tilted the vote; the bill passed in May and was signed into law on June 2.

The court ruling is a clear and direct rejection of Gov. Murkowski's prohibitionist zealotry --and a victory for all Alaskans.

WAR: USA admits it used NAPALM bombs in IRAQ - 2003

American pilots dropped the controversial incendiary agent napalm on Iraqi troops during the advance on Baghdad. The attacks caused massive fireballs that obliterated several Iraqi positions.

The Pentagon denied using napalm at the time, but Marine pilots and their commanders have confirmed that they used an upgraded version of the weapon against dug-in positions. They said napalm, which has a distinctive smell, was used because of its psychological effect on an enemy.

A 1980 UN convention banned the use against civilian targets of napalm, a terrifying mixture of jet fuel and polystyrene that sticks to skin as it burns. The US, which did not sign the treaty, is one of the few countries that makes use of the weapon. It was employed notoriously against both civilian and military targets in the Vietnam war. The upgraded weapon, which uses kerosene rather than petrol, was used in March and April, when dozens of napalm bombs were dropped near bridges over the Saddam Canal and the Tigris river, south of Baghdad.

"We napalmed both those [bridge] approaches," said Colonel James Alles, commander of Marine Air Group 11. "Unfortunately there were people there ... you could see them in the [cockpit] video. They were Iraqi soldiers. It's no great way to die. The generals love napalm. It has a big psychological effect."

A reporter from the Sydney Morning Herald who witnessed another napalm attack on 21 March on an Iraqi observation post at Safwan Hill, close to the Kuwaiti border, wrote the following day: "Safwan Hill went up in a huge fireball and the observation post was obliterated. 'I pity anyone who is in there,' a Marine sergeant said. 'We told them to surrender.'"

At the time, the Pentagon insisted the report was untrue. "We completed destruction of our last batch of napalm on 4 April, 2001," it said.

The revelation that napalm was used in the war against Iraq, while the Pentagon denied it, has outraged opponents of the war.

"Most of the world understands that napalm and incendiaries are a horrible, horrible weapon," said Robert Musil, director of the organisation Physicians for Social Responsibility. "It takes up an awful lot of medical resources. It creates horrible wounds." Mr Musil said denial of its use "fits a pattern of deception [by the US administration]".

The Pentagon said it had not tried to deceive. It drew a distinction between traditional napalm, first invented in 1942, and the weapons dropped in Iraq, which it calls Mark 77 firebombs. They weigh 510lbs, and consist of 44lbs of polystyrene-like gel and 63 gallons of jet fuel.

Officials said that if journalists had asked about the firebombs their use would have been confirmed. A spokesman admitted they were "remarkably similar" to napalm but said they caused less environmental damage.

But John Pike, director of the military studies group GlobalSecurity.Org, said: "You can call it something other than napalm but it is still napalm. It has been re-mulated in the sense that they now use a different petroleum distillate, but that is it. The US is the only country that has used napalm for a long time. I am not aware of any other country that uses it." Marines returning from Iraq chose to call the firebombs "napalm".

Mr Musil said the Pentagon's effort to draw a distinction between the weapons was outrageous. He said: "It's Orwellian. They do not want the public to know. It's a lie."

In an interview with the San Diego Union-Tribune, Marine Corps Maj-Gen Jim Amos confirmed that napalm was used on several occasions in the war.

US Troops, Iraqi Police Seize Marijuana Plants

7/14/06 -- US troops and Iraqi police seized and destroyed a bumper crop of marijuana plants last week, according to a report in Stars & Stripes. Based on a military press release, the report said soldiers from the 172nd Stryker Brigade Combat Team, which has responsibility for most of northern Iraq, discovered the field in an unnamed location.

According to the military press release, the field contained "juvenile marijuana plants grown in a series of furrows. The owner claimed he was growing sesame."

Police put the value of the field at $2 million. The crop was cut down and destroyed, and the man arrested.

While drug use and trafficking was rare under the repressive regime of Saddam Hussein, the chaos and violence into which the country has descended since the US invasion in 2003, has both increased drug use and made the country more attractive to smugglers. That is to be expected, complained Hamid Ghodse, head of the International Narcotics Control Board, the United Nations body charged with monitoring compliance with UN anti-drug treaties.

"Whether it is due to war or disaster, weakening of border controls and security infrastructure make countries into convenient logistic and transit points, not only for international terrorists and militants, but also for traffickers," Ghodse told the BBC in referring to Iraq last year.

"You cannot have peace, security and development without attending to drug control," Ghodse added, staying on point. But in Iraq, maybe we'd all be better off if everyone just smoked some herb and chilled out.

U.S. Abandons Animals in Lebanon Chaos

Images of kittens sniffing amid rubble. Dogs seen running frantically down the streets. Distraught Americans told that they must leave their animal companions behind to starve and die in the destruction. These scenes-reminiscent of cruel and illegal decisions made in the wake of Hurricane Katrina-are reality once more. While the French government has made provisions for animal evacuations, the U.S. is doing the opposite. U.S. officials evacuating citizens from Lebanon have failed to heed the lesson of the Gulf Coast and are refusing Americans' attempts to evacuate with their animal companions.

PETA Calls On U.S. Commander, South African Embassy Official to Facilitate Evacuation of Animals PETA has sent an urgent letter to Brig. Gen. Carl Jensen-the military commander in charge of U.S. evacuation operations in Lebanon-begging him to instruct his officers to help evacuees take their animals with them to safety and bringing international attention to the government's failure to serve all Americans trapped in Lebanon.

PETA also dashed off a letter to Siyabonga Ponco, chargé d'affaires of the South African Embassy in Cairo, urging him to permit South African nationals who are being evacuated to take their companion animals with them rather than forcing them to abandon their animals in the rubble to starve. The plea stemmed from an e-mail message that Ponco sent to PETA in which he suggested that evacuees with animals should "not demand more than they could be given"-implying that a request to help South African citizens take their beloved cats, dogs, and birds with them would be asking too much.

How You Can Help Today: Please immediately urge President George W. Bush not to break the law by encouraging abandonment of companion animals and to ensure the safety of all Americans in Lebanon by ordering that citizens be allowed to evacuate with their animal companions:

Toxic Gas Weapons being used in Lebanon?

Beirut -- July 19, 2006 The attached pictures are hideously gruesome, but you have to look at them. Help me find out what kind of weapons cause this kind of dismemberment and mutation.

What kind of weapons cause this kind of damage? Do you know? Could you find out? None of this is confirmed, or could be here and now. However, there are growing doubts that Israel might be using internationally forbidden weapons in its current aggression against Lebanon. News from "Southern Medical Center", a hospital in Saida (in South Lebanon) are not good. Dr. Bashir Sham, member of "French Association of Cardiovascular Surgeons", explains that the way the corps look when they reach the hospital, especially those of the air strikes in Doueir and Rmayleih, is very abnormal."

One might think they were burnt, but their colour is dark, they're inflated, and they have a terrible smell" All this, and the hair is not burnt nor do the bodies bleed. Eight of the victims of an air strike on Rmayleih bridge, near Saida, on the 15th of July, were transferred to Sham's hospital. Sham says that only chemical poisonous substances "lead to instant death without bleeding".

And what indicates the power of these substances, is the high and unusual of number of dead victims, compared to the number of injuries. Sham thinks that whatever "abnormal" substance causing these features might penetrate through the skin, or another explanation would be that the missiles contained toxic gas that stopped the proper functioning of the nervous system, and led to blood clotting. These toxic materials cause immediate death, within two to thirty minutes, according to Sham, who admits that these doubts can't be proven, not even by an autopsy. The director of the same medical center, Ali Mansour, says that due to the strong smell of the corpse, he couldn't breathe properly for at least 12 hours after the corps were handled. He explains that the center received eight bodies from Rmeileh last Monday, and none of them was bleeding.

Letter to the Editor: RE: Gun Ban Agenda

Sent this to Hillary Clinton, Chuck Shumer, Teddy Kennedy, Barbara Boxer, and Frank Lautenberg thru Congress.org

In my 20 plus years defending the peoples gun rights I have never seen a U.S. Senator be so deceitful in pushing their gun ban agenda. I'm talking about YOU Senator Lautenberg. Called the "Public Safety and Recreational Firearms Use Protection Act".

Laughable to say the least. The other co-sponsors, that should be charged with Racketeering are Hillary Clinton, "Terrible" Ted Kennedy, Chuck "the shmuck" Shumer and "Box Cutter" Barbara Boxer. All avid anti-gun/anti-Constitutionalist. I hope you are ALL voted out of office. None of you belong in Congress representing anyone in a free republic! For your information, a good friend that is living in Australia at the moment is planning to move back to Hawaii after 16 years as she watches the crime rate go out of control after their draconian GUN BAN went into effect. She just told me of another drive by shooting near her home. Seems now, only criminals, the cops and the military in Australia have guns. I know all of you antigunners in congress know all too well what will be achieved if this type of bill passes and our decider signs it into law.

This is why myself as well as other real American Patriots have decided to follow in the footsteps of our founding fathers, obey the Constitution and NOT comply with this if it becomes law! If a government fears it's people you have freedom, but if the people fear their Government you have tyranny! Not on my watch Frank...

Joseph Rodrigues, Honolulu, Hawaii

PS: should add Senators Dan Akaka and Dan Inouye to the gun grabber list!

What Happened on 9-11-01?

On September 11, 2001, we Americans were the victims of TREASON.
 By September 12, we Americans all became the suspects watched by FBI.
 Not one single U.S. citizen hijacked a plane, yet President Bush and DOJ, through powers seized and codified in the fascist USA PATRIOT Act, labeled 270 million of us for surveillance, for searches, for tracking, for prison without charges. Welcome to the New World Order! Police State USA!

IRAQ WAR UPDATED

VETERANS for 911 Truth <http://www.v911t.org/Free911Videos.php>

To preserve, protect, and defend the Constitution for the United States of America against all enemies, foreign or domestic.

"We must speak the truth about terror. Let us never tolerate outrageous conspiracy theories concerning the attacks of September the 11th; malicious lies that attempt to shift the blame away from the terrorists themselves, away from the guilty." — George W. Bush

We at Veterans for 911 Truth agree with the above quoted words of George W. Bush; but for entirely different reasons. The evidence shows the George W. Bush, his Administration and others at the highest levels of government have failed and refused to provide leadership when this country needed and needs it most, including with respect to the events leading up to 9/11, during 9/11 and after 9/11. They have prevented any meaningful investigation of 9/11, they have facilitated the destruction of evidence necessary to identify and prosecute the actual perpetrators of 9/11, and they have promoted "[] malicious lies that attempt to shift the blame away from the terrorists [and] the guilty." Many members of the current establishment will not lead this country, they will not follow the principles of our Republic, and it is time for them to get out of the way of truth, freedom and liberty.

We at Veterans for 911 Truth do not promote the views of one political party over another. What we stand for is not about Democrat versus Republican or "left versus right." Our mission is concerned with principles of right versus wrong and good versus evil.

We have chosen to display the United States Flag with the union down as a signal of the dire distress this Nation is experiencing. Displaying the flag in this manner is not disrespectful to, or a desecration of, the flag. It is lawful to display the flag in this manner in times of distress. Ours is truly a Nation in distress. Our ultimate mission is to strive for and achieve the day when we can in good conscience again display the flag with the union up. Because then, and only then, will we know that we are rid of the forces that have placed this Nation and the world in such dire distress.

We close by recalling the words of General Douglas MacArthur: "No man is entitled to the blessings of freedom, unless he be vigilant in its preservation."

Veterans for 911 Truth was created by people who met by chance at The Scholars for 911 Truth Forum. They are good people with something in common, they are people, who are patriots and champions of truth and justice, who understand that what happened on 911, and what has ensued since, is a Coup d'Etat.

It all began with an article written by freelance writer Cathy Garger entitled: It Only Takes One - Vets For 9/11 Truth: by Cathy Garger --- Read More Cathy was the ONE, Titus was TWO, and then Alfons was THREE, and we began to grow.

Then at The Scholars for 911 Truth Forum a post by Titus: It Only Takes One - Vets For 9/11 Truth: by Cathy Garger

www.911blogger.com/2006/04/it-only-takes-one-vets-for-911-truth.html

Then it was followed by this post by Alfons I am a Nam Veteran; I would join, or help start a vet's org for 911 truth. Here is my site www.freedomisforeverybody.org/ In my opinion doing nothing threatens ones safety as much or more than doing something. I recognize Cathy's name from 911 Truth Action. Contact me if you would like. alf@freedomisforeverybody.org

Then Matt posted this: I'm a Vietnam veteran myself. I would like to see a group of veterans formed to stand up for 911 truth. Remember there is a group called the VVAW (Vietnam Veterans Against the War) that is still in existence today. I talked to some members a few weeks back in my hometown and found out that these members weren't very aware of current 911 knowledge.

Then others like, Matt, Stevan Douglas Looney, and Cathy Garger began to chime in with very affirmative suggestions for action. So now we are moving forward in an effort to enlist the help and cooperation of Veterans, and Patriots to get the word out about the dire circumstances that have befallen We the People of the United States and the World.

If you have been fortunate enough to be among those of us who have seen through the lies and deceptions you can help out in this essential cause. You can join our group, you can help out by making suggestions and lending your expertise. You can also contribute by making a donation to help with expenses. This is our time, right now, to fight back for TRUTH, JUSTICE, FREEDOM and the AMERICAN WAY.

"No man is entitled to the blessings of freedom, unless he be vigilant in its preservation."

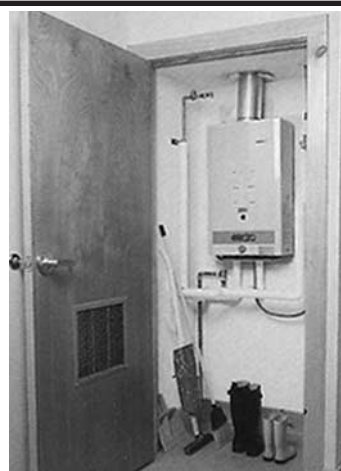

--- General Douglas MacArthur

IRS Threatens Churches on Political Expression

"The Internal Revenue Service has been warning churches and nonprofit organizations that improper campaigning in the upcoming political season could endanger their tax-exempt status. In notices to more than 15,000 tax-exempt organizations, numerous church denominations and tax preparers, the agency has detailed its new enforcement program, called the Political Activity Compliance Initiative, the Los Angeles Times reported Tuesday.

Under the initiative, the IRS plans to expedite investigations into claims of improper campaigning, no longer waiting for an annual tax return to be filed or the tax year to end before launching a probe. A three-member committee will make an initial review of complaints and then vote on whether to pursue the investigation in detail."

[editor's note: And of course, the direct correlation with the specific candidate(s) backed by the churches who were challenged ... is pure coincidence! - SAT] (07/18/06)
